

SALES TAX BILL AGAIN DEFEATED IN HOUSE TODAY

DEADLOCK OVER NRA EXTENSION FEAR OF CHIEF

Senate Leaders Issued Warning They'll Accept No Changes

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—A deadlock threatened today over extension of the NRA.

Senate administration leaders insisted they would hold out for the ten months extension approved by the senate. House Democratic chiefs gave no indication that they would accept anything less than the two years desired by President Roosevelt.

"I feel certain," Speaker Byrnes told reporters, "that the house is disposed to insist upon a two year extension."

"The attitude as I see it is this: If the NRA is worth extending at all, it is worth two years; if it isn't, it ought to be junked."

"We will take the bill up in the house as soon as the ways and means committee finishes with it. I hope the committee will report it in a properly modified form in a few days."

"There will be no necessity, I feel sure, to use a gag rule to get it through the house."

Harrison's Warning.
Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee had warned that if the house changed the senate's ten months extension to two years, and the measure went to conference, he would refuse to accept the change and let the senate vote on the issue.

Indications were that the house would not pass the bill for a week or ten days. That would leave three weeks or less for final action before the June 16 dead line, the day the NRA expires.

The senate measure, exempting wholly intra-state business from the codes, was discussed at a conference of Democratic members of the house ways and means committee and Charles H. West, former Ohio congressman who is now a "contact man" for the president. Donald R. Richberg, chairman of the governing board of NRA, was reported to be drafting a definition of interstate business, for submission to the committee, which would permit application of codes to businesses competing across state lines.

There was no indication, however, that the house members would try to make the new NRA applicable to the thousands of small establishments which operate solely within a single state.

Disregard Roosevelt.
The senate, without a record vote, approved the ten-month extension overwhelmingly yesterday despite the fact that Roosevelt only a few days ago reiterated his preference for legislation which would continue NRA two years.

Senate leaders warned that any change in their resolution might delay final action beyond June 16, when NRA will expire unless a new recovery act has been completed.

The bill passed by the senate and now awaiting house action, has four outstanding provisions: (1) It prolongs the life of NRA about 10 months, postponing its legal demise from June 16 to next April 1.

(2) It makes codes of fair competition inapplicable to intra-state industries.

(3) It prohibits price-fixing save for mineral natural-resource industries in which prices are now fixed.

(4) It gives Roosevelt 30 days after June 16 to examine all codes for uniformity.

Ira Page's Case Expected to be in Jury's Hands Before Evening
Trial of Ira Page, Grand Detour farmer, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon neared an end today as Page took the witness stand in Ogle Circuit Court at Oregon, to deny accusations of three Rockford youths that he attacked them with a club near the Page farm on Oct. 6.

The state rested its case yesterday afternoon after the three Rockford youths, Gene Maracco, Dino Fratello and Frank Simone, had named Page as their assailant. According to state charges, Page is alleged to have hit Fratello with a rock and Simone with a club when he found them hunting on his property. The assault, the witnesses declared, did not occur until the three youths had left the Page farm

Great Britain, France Study Mussolini's Warning Speech

Rome, May 15.—(AP)—Italy faced with confidence today a world which weighed Premier Mussolini's declaration that he would brook no interference in the Ethiopian situation.

The 900,000 modern equipped men he has called to arms can assure Italy's security not only in the colonies, but in Europe as well. Duce announced in a surprise speech before the senate yesterday.

Every war industry in Italy, he said, has been working full time for months.

There has been "a gathering of forces on land and sea and in the sky," he informed the enthusiastically applauding senators.

Mussolini's address, vigorous and at times ironic, was both a warning against interference in Italy's program in East Africa and a defiance of implied criticism of his policy.

"Let no one take upon himself the intolerable judgment of cross-examining us as to the character and volume of our precautionary measures," he said. "No one except Italy can be the judge in such a most delicate matter."

Diplomatic circles in Rome expressed the private view that Duce by his comments had "beaten" France and Great Britain to the punch" in regard to any formal move affecting Italy's Ethiopian policy.

Any formal joint move now would be little short of an unfriendly act in the wake of yesterday's speech, it was pointed out.

AMBOYITE HELD ON ROBBERY ALLEGATION HERE

Henry Ringenberg, 45, of Amboy, was arrested at his home this morning by Deputy Sheriff Gilbert Finch on a warrant charging assault and robbery, sworn out last evening before Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson on complaint of Carl Wolf of Mendota. Ringenberg, an Amboy township relief client, was brought to the county jail in Dixon and is to be arraigned this afternoon.

Wolf came to Dixon last evening and related the alleged circumstances surrounding a robbery at Sublette on Sunday morning, April 28, to Sheriff Ward Miller and State's Attorney Edward A. Jones which resulted in the issuance of the warrant. Wolf was said to have stated that he had been drinking at the Rapp tavern in Sublette on the Sunday morning and became ill. He went to the rear of the place and was sitting on a step when he saw Ringenberg come out of the tavern.

The Mendota man was found some time later lying on the ground his pockets having been rifled and about $33 in bills taken. Wolf charges that Ringenberg struck him on the head and robbed him of his money.

Condemned Killer Took Own Life in His Cell

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Leaving a letter in which he admitted that he was "a killer of man by nature," Harrison McKinley Kaiser, of Portsmouth, Ohio, hanged himself yesterday in the District of Columbia jail where he was awaiting electrocution for murder. Kaiser was convicted of the murder of a union official during a labor dispute here in September, 1932. He was scheduled to have been executed June 11.

Page's defense was opened by Attorney Albert S. Hannegan of Dixon with the testimony of eight character witnesses. The defendant denied that he hit either Simone or Fratello. Page said a scar on Simone's head which the latter exhibited to the jury, was caused when Simone fell in a ditch when leaving the Page farm.

The defense is expected to rest its case today. State rebuttal witnesses will include Arthur Sagona of Rockford and Charles Myers of Dixon, state game wardens. State's Attorney S. D. Crowell said today: The case is expected to be placed in the hands of a Circuit court jury before night by Judge Frank Sheehan of Galena, presiding jurist.

VICTIM CIRCUS TRAGEDY STILL LISTED UNKNOWN

Sterling Man Thought He Might Have Been Cousin in From Penna.

Edward Love, residing near Sterling came to Dixon last evening to inquire from the local police concerning the identity of an unknown circus employee who was killed at Byron yesterday morning. He said his cousin, Dick Quinn of Pennsylvania, who had been visiting at the Love home near Sterling, had come to Dixon Monday afternoon in an effort to obtain employment with the circus and had not been heard from afterwards.

Chief J. D. VanBibber obtained a description of Quinn and then telephoned to the Gill undertaking parlors at Byron, where the body of the unknown man is held. It was learned that Quinn's description did not tally with that of the circus employee who met death yesterday morning when he fell from the top of one of the fleet of trucks.

Fingerprints Taken
Fingerprints, taken yesterday afternoon, may lead to identification of the unfortunate unknown. They were mailed to Washington last night after it was learned that the victim had said that he was formerly an inmate of the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary. He is also believed to have been a World War veteran.

Circus employees were unable to furnish authorities with any information concerning the victim's identity. The accident occurred at 8:30 A. M. yesterday on the route 2 detour through Byron of the A. H. Lytle berry farm. The victim was apparently standing on the rear of the truck when a gust of wind blew a piece of tarpaulin against him and hurled him to the ground. Death was caused by a fractured skull.

The victim had no identification papers and no identifying marks. If the victim is either a former convict or a World War veteran his fingerprints will be on file in Washington, it was said.

Talent Night Will be Discussed Soon

Talent Night, an annual event sponsored by the Dixon Chamber of Commerce, will be discussed at a meeting Monday night with Miss Eleanor Ogden of station WLS. The Chamber will decide Monday the feasibility of holding the affair later in the summer. The 1934 Talent Night was held at the Assembly Park auditorium in September. At that time a barn dance was staged, and exceptionally good talent from Dixon and vicinity gathered for stunts and impersonations. A capacity crowd filled the big auditorium three consecutive nights.

It is hoped a good attendance will again fill the auditorium this summer when the date for the event has been settled.

Emergency Operation Performed by Light of Candles Last Eve

Chicago, May 15.—(AP)—An emergency major operation was performed by the light of candles and a flashlight early today when Cook county hospital was darkened for two and a half hours by failure of the generating plant.

Two patients were about to enter surgery when the lights failed. One, Stephen Sevee, 65, was in danger of strangulation because of a throat ailment and physicians decided the operation could not be delayed. The other, an appendectomy, was postponed.

Dr. John Wall, resident surgeon, performed the operation. Sevee was reported in satisfactory condition. A flue feeding the steam turbine in the hospital's general plant failed and caused the shutdown.

VETERAN RAILROAD MAN TAKEN BY CREATOR

E. T. Leith Passed On at His Home After Month's Illness

Edmund Thomas Leith, veteran railroad man, passed away this morning at 7 o'clock at his home, 1714 Third street, death resulting from paralysis with which he was stricken four weeks ago Monday.

He was born, Jan. 26, 1854 at Mason, Effingham county, Ill., and was one of nine children, two sons and seven daughters, of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Leith. He was united in marriage to Clara E. Hill, Nov. 6, 1881, who lived to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary two years ago. One son E. Hill Leith of Chicago survives, together with two sisters, Mrs. Enola Myers of Pasadena, Cal., and Mrs. J. D. Clark of Salem, Ore.

Mr. and Mrs. Leith came to reside in Lee county in 1888 and resided first at Eldena, then Sublette and since 1904 in Dixon. Mr. Leith was the son of pioneer Illinois farmers and entered the service of the Illinois Central railroad company in 1883, retiring in 1925 after 38 consecutive years of service with the railroad in Lee county. He was a life long Mason and was one of the oldest members of Sublette lodge. He was also a member of Dixon Commandery, No. 21, Knights Templar.

Funeral services will be held at the Masonic Temple at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. Dr. J. Frank Young officiating, and with Friendship lodge A. F. & A. M. in charge. The body will be laid to rest in Oakwood Memorial Mausoleum.

STEWART MAN'S EFFORT TO DIE IS FRUSTRATED
(Telegraph Special Service.)

Stewart, May 15.—Floyd Repine, 35, was found hanging from a rafter in the garage at the rear of his home this morning about 11:30. At 1 o'clock this afternoon it was stated that he had regained consciousness and the attending physician entertained hopes for his complete recovery.

The victim of the suicide attempt had been hanging but a short time when the body was discovered and the rope which held him suspended to the rafter was cut. A hasty examination disclosed slight breathing and some heart action. A physician was summoned from Rochelle together with the inhalator from the fire department of that city and both were pressed into service.

Repine responded to the artificial respiratory methods and stimulants and an hour later had recovered consciousness. At that time it was reported that his complete recovery was expected with no serious consequences resulting.

JAPANESE CALM
Shimonoseki, Japan, May 15.—(AP)—Japanese naval maneuvers as close to American shores as the United States war games in the northeast Pacific are to Japan, said Admiral Kanji Kato today, would greatly agitate American opinion.

The former naval chief of staff, who is making an inspection tour through Kyushu, compared the activities of the American combined fleets to "drawing a sword before a neighbor's house."

"The United States navy's maneuvers approach within 2,000 kilometers or ten hours' airplane flight of Japanese territory," he said.

"If Japan maneuvered that close to American shores, it would greatly agitate American opinion. We Japanese, however, are remaining calm."

NAVIGATORS OF FLEET PRECISE

Remarkable Efficiency is Shown by Officers of United States Navy

Aboard Battleship Pennsylvania, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, May 15.—(AP)—Remarkable precision and intricate navigation displayed by the main battle fleet of the United States navy in strategic deployment on its recent dash across the Pacific from California to Hawaii was reported today to be highly gratifying to the high command.

This first phase of the sixteenth annual fleet maneuvers proved to be a valuable test of the operation of a high seas battle force between far distant bases, high officers indicated. It also demonstrated the abilities of the world's most powerful submarine division.

Success was attained both by the battle ships and the undersea craft, officers said, and the very fact that each division checkedmate operations of the other at some stage of the westward dash proved the effectiveness of both.

What was perhaps the most irregular course toward Hawaii ever followed by power craft was laid out and adhered to by the fleet. At the end of the 2,400 miles, the Pennsylvania, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves' flagship, led the fleet into sight of Oahu within the hour which had been scheduled for its arrival before the start of the cruise. The Pennsylvania sighted Oahu within a mile of the spot navigators in California had chosen at the start of the maneuvers.

AGED BACHELOR GIVES BONDS TO FORMER WORKERS

Prosperity Hits Scores of Horicon, Wis., Families This Week

Horicon, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—Echoes of the song of gratitude from those benefitting in a $285,000 gift reverberated through the Horicon business district today as families of veteran employees of Willard A. Van Brunt paid old bills, made long delayed purchases of luxuries or reinvested their new wealth.

Following a precedent set by other Van Brunts, the 88-year-old $1,000 federal baby bonds to each of 89 former employees and the widows of six from his home in Los Angeles.

"Since coming out to the coast," he wrote each recipient, "I have had a wish in mind to express the lasting friendship I have always entertained for you. The registered government bonds, in your name, x x x is part of our earnings while we were all on the job."

Gift to Community
In the eyes of H. G. Dieckmann, bank cashier and president of the Wisconsin Bankers' Association, the gift was one to the entire community.

"The rush to pay bills and to seek bank advice on making the money work began at once. Mortgages are being paid off and personal accounts settled," he said.

Dieckmann said one recipient "simply ran" to pay a $200 bill to a grocer who had carried him along during lean years.

When the manufacturer's mother died in 1917, she left gifts of $1000 and $800 to employees of more than 20 years service. The mansion Van Brunt had left when he sold his interest in the company in 1918 is a community center with a fund for its upkeep. His aunt in 1920 built a $75,000 high school for the city.

Founded in 1860 by Van Brunt's father, the Van Brunt Manufacturing Company produces grain drills and seeders, and is Horicon's largest factory, employing more than 200. The company became a subsidiary of Deere & Co., Moline, Ill., when Van Brunt sold his interest.

WEATHERMAN IS STUMPED: CAN'T EXPLAIN RAINS

Is Unable to Explain Why Air Currents Change Meetings

Chicago, May 15.—(AP)—Why rain should fall by handfuls this spring in the central states, baked last year by the worst drought in history, puzzles even the experts.

Last year rivers vanished, crops wilted and water was almost a delicacy. Stock died of thirst on withered pasture land.

But this year, according to W. P. Day, government forecaster at Chicago, a lucky collision of air currents over Canada changed the picture. May, without much warning, suddenly repealed the drought.

The Mississippi today runs so high that in some river towns boats have been ordered to proceed cautiously so as not to spill water over the levees. The Chicago fire department has bailed out hundreds of city basements. Farm work has been rained out in many places and Illinois river bottom crops are in danger.

"The immediate cause," said Day "is that the polar air currents and the tropical air current met, this year, farther south. Last year they were so far north that the precipitation which resulted never reached the middle west."

But both Day and Prof. H. B. Ward, Northwestern University meteorologist, agreed that it is not known why the currents met at one place this year and at another last year.

Ordinarily, the year that ends a drought is a year of normal weather, said Prof. Ward. The middle west's winter and early spring weather indicated, he said, that 1935 would be normal year.

MAGISTRATE MISSING.
Metropolis, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—Alarm was expressed here today over the disappearance of Police Magistrate P. T. Carmack, missing since May 6.

Arrests in connection with the clearing up of a series of chicken thefts in the vicinity of Amboy had reached a total of six at noon today. Four had been taken into the county court on informations where Judge Leech had imposed sentence, no action had been taken in the case of one woman, the mother of a small child, and the sixth was to be taken into the county court today. The list of Amboy residents concerned:

Ralph Beebe, sentenced to serve one year at Vandalia state work farm.

Mrs. Esther Beebe, paroled for a period of one year.

Mrs. Gladys Darfier, paroled for a period of one year.

James Woodrow Ehnman, sentenced to serve 90 days in the county jail.

"It's All Right"

Says Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith After Epic Struggle Over Sea

Sydney, Australia, May 15.—(AP)—"It's all right, they can't kill me," Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith shouted joyfully to his wife as he landed the famed Southern Cross today after an epic battle with engine trouble over the stormy Tasman Sea.

Sir Charles, Captain P. C. Taylor, his navigator, and J. Stannard, wireless operator, whose terse reports of their struggle to keep from plunging into the sea kept Australia on edge for hours, all showed plainly the strain of the ordeal.

"Anyone but Kingsford-Smith would have crashed," Taylor said. The most thrilling moment of the perilous flight, in which disaster appeared imminent over the last 450 miles, came when Taylor risked his life to climb out on the plane's wings to transfer oil from starboard to port tanks.

To keep the faltering ship aloft, Taylor worked desperately at the sputtering engines. Strong winds, lashing the Tasman Sea into foam, tore at him as he worked.

Misfortune overtook the trim-motored Southern Cross, in which Kingsford-Smith has flown both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, when at sea en route to Wellington, N. Z., with a cargo of special jubilee mail.

The propeller and part of one of the three motors tore loose from their fastenings and hurtled into the water.

SHERIFF SEEKS THREE PURPORT-ED U. S. AGENTS

Three men, alleged to be posing as federal agents, were being sought early this afternoon in Dixon and vicinity by Sheriff Ward Miller. Proprietors of all taverns and road houses were notified in inform the sheriff's office if the trio appeared.

"A report reached the sheriff early this afternoon to the effect that they were attempting to collect from $1 to $100 from places where beer is sold, charging that the proprietors had failed to abide by a ruling in the cancellation of stamps on the beer kegs. One proprietor reported that he had been told that he was subject to a fine of $1,000 and then was asked to pay $100, the price scaling down to $10 to have the alleged offense "fixed" in Chicago. When he refused to pay any amount he was threatened with federal arrest, he told the sheriff. In other instances, reports stated that sums had been paid by proprietors to evade being called into Chicago to be fined.

The investigation was being conducted by Sheriff Miller in an effort to clear up another report which reached his office last week. A home southeast of Amboy was visited by well dressed strangers, said to have been armed with a fake search warrant on which appeared the scribbled names of Ward Miller and Fred Richardson. Claiming to be in search of a still the home and all of the farm buildings were searched and when nothing was found, the trio left without apologies. Members of the family failed to secure the license numbers on the car.

Only nine of the 312 high school students were in class today. The school board which meets Friday has been presented petitions signed by both adults and students.

Adults joined the students in a protest parade last night in the business section. They carried banners asking that Heeb be reinstated and that S. M. Sprout, high school principal, whose position is thought also to be in jeopardy, be retained.

Pickets were on duty at the high school.

Senate Republicans
Fight to Hold River
Forest Man's Place

Springfield, Ill., May 15—(AP)—The fight to keep the Democrats from unseating Arthur J. Bidwell, River Forest Republican, opened in the senate today.
Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, Republican leader, proposed that the rules be amended to require a two-thirds vote for the "expulsion" of a senator who has been given the oath of office.
The senate elections committee voted that Bidwell should be replaced by Charles F. Baumrucker, Democratic mayor of River Forest, who filed an election contest. The formal report to the senate was delayed until tomorrow to permit J. B. Joliet Republican, to draw up a minority report in favor of Bidwell.

CONSIDERATION—

nounced for opposing the sales tax increase before his election and favoring it since.

Asserting the state has sufficient revenue to meet the demand of "Dictator Hopkins" for $3,000,000 monthly without an additional tax, McCarthy said the Governor alone is responsible for the closing of relief stations.

"If the governor is not impeached by the house, he will be impeached by public sentiment," the Elgin Republican declared.

The Republican attack was then taken up by Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, who ridiculed the Democratic claim that immediate passage is necessary.

"Six weeks remain until the federal government has promised to take over all relief activities except the care of unemployables," he said. "Why then, if we need money but for six weeks, are we asked to vote a tax which will be collected for the next two years?"

Suggests Property Levy
Schnackenberg suggested the relief funds could be raised by levying a property tax and issuing anticipation notes. Votes for the administration bill are obtained only by pressure, he said.

Like McCarthy, he said higher taxes aren't necessary and condemned the governor.

William M. Carroll, Woodstock Republican, likened administration efforts to pass the bill to Grant's campaign before Richmond.

Majority leader Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago closed the debate for the Democrats, denying Republican charges and declaring the sales tax increase is essential if the unemployed are to be fed and sheltered.

The roll call was started at 1:20 P. M. Many Representatives who customarily take part in the sales tax debates had been silent, indicating that more than the usual number would take the five minutes allotted to explain their votes.

Few Votes Changed
"The money is for emergency relief and that is where it is going," Adamowski said in closing the debate.

The youthful Democratic leader denied the treasury has a surplus available for relief, saying the items mentioned by Republicans are ear-marked for other uses.

Adamowski denounced McCarthy for suggesting the Governor be impeached, saying:

"If operating the state at $20,000,000 less than was done by his Republican predecessor, if his support of a measure to feed the hungry, a measure which they say is sending him to political oblivion, if that is a crime, then perhaps he should be impeached."

Believe Despondent
Mother Killed Two Daughters, Herself

Chicago, May 15—(AP)—The deaths of Mrs. Verena Lewis, 44-year-old widow, and her two daughters were under coroner's investigation today, with indications that the woman plotted their death in a fit of emotion on Mother's Day.

The three bodies were found last night in a garage near their home after friends and relatives had been unable to reach them for two days.

Mrs. Lewis, widow of Frank Lewis, who served as a lieutenant overseas in the World War, was found on the floor of the garage. The girls, Martha, 12 and Catherine, 10, were lying on the automobile seats, coats tucked about them as if their mother had put them to bed. Death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Relatives said Mrs. Lewis had been despondent, due to financial worries, partly due to inability to obtain funds from an estate in Pittsburgh tied up by litigation.

By keeping the bill from the White House, observers pointed out the Patman group forestalled any need for a filibuster. If the president returned the bill immediately after receiving it from congress a quick vote might be sought before supporters of the bill could rally their full strength.

The chief executive's advisers on the Hill are predicting openly that the veto message will be couched in language that will not only defeat any drive in the senate to override it, but also end the bonus issue for this session.

MIND IMPROVED
BY REMOVAL OF
MOST OF BRAIN

Almost Unbelievable Operation Performed in Louisville School

Washington, May 15—(AP)—A woman whose mind was improved by an operation that removed nearly the entire "thinking" portion of her brain was described to the American Psychiatric Association today.

The report reads like a fairy tale of medicine. Her personality was changed—lifted to better levels.

The operation removed the entire right prefrontal lobe and most of the left lobe. These lobes are the grey matter credited with being the seat of reason, logic and intelligence.

That they also strongly affect personality was not so widely believed.

Operation 2 Years Ago
The report was made by Spafford Ackery, M. D., associate professor of psychiatry of the University of Louisville School of Medicine. The operation was done two years ago he said, by Glen Spurling, professor of neuro-surgery at the same school.

Today's report was on what it did to the personality of the woman. She is an Austro-Hungarian, is married and was 35 when a tumor necessitated the removal of so much of her brain.

For the first year afterward she was extraordinarily gay and happy, almost childishly so. With the second year came the mature changes now reported. Intelligence tests rate her as well as the average American adult.

But her power of concentration has improved over anything previously shown by her. Her memory of immediate events is good, and for events long past is "remarkable." She reads English much better than before the operation.

Temper Improved
She says she can do more work without fatigue. She goes to sleep at once and rests soundly. Her temper is better. She worries less than formerly.

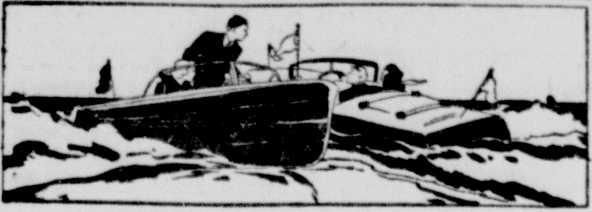

Her motor, or muscular, activity is increased, but without any fidgetings or aimless, purposeless movements. She prefers quantity in accomplishment rather than quality.

Her religious advisers are delighted with her piety, her church attendance and evident love of religion. But her husband says she has feelings of superiority.

DUST STORMS

By Joseph Fort Newton

ONCE upon a time a man felt that if he had a farm it was safe. If he went away it would be there when he returned. Nobody could steal it. It could not be burned up or blown away.

But that is not true any longer. We have seen whirling, swirling winds lift the fertile soil and sweep it away—carrying it in huge, black, suffocating clouds for miles, leaving the earth bare.

It is an amazing phenomenon, one of the major disasters of our time—threatening to make a desert in the very heart of the land. It has left multitudes of our people homeless, helpless, hopeless.

It needs no insight to see in this calamity a parable of our times, a symbol of the sweeping changes taking place, a sign of the swift and radical shifting in the thought and attitude of men.

No wonder a sense of insecurity grips us, making the hearts of men stand still at thought of unpredictable, unimaginable things impending. It is as if the very soil were being swept from under our feet.

"Few men see what is passing before their eyes," said Edmund Burke; and in a driving dust-storm darkening earth and sky, we cannot see clearly. A profound change has taken place, and we hardly know where we are. Even the wisest men are confused and cannot see the way.

Ideas, principles, faiths and policies which seemed stable to our ancestors no longer meet our need. They are not refuted; they are forgotten. In the new situation in which we are living they do not apply.

Since the World War men have been trying to deepen and enrich the soil in which peace could grow—only to see it swept away in a dust-storm of fear, hatred, and revenge, taking peace and plans with it.

By every art at our command we have sought to promote good-will and understanding between races and religion—but a dust-storm of intolerance and rancor has blackened the sky and blasted our hopes.

None the less, in spite of disaster, we must begin again, undismayed and undefeated by delay. We can do no other—we dare not give up!

Miss Walls Gave Instructive Address

Miss Edna Walls, Child Development Specialist of the University of Illinois gave the lesson "Answering Children's Questions About the Beginning of Life," to Home Bureau members on Wednesday afternoon, May 10th at the Hotel Dixon, with a good attendance present.

Many interesting discussions were enjoyed and new ideas formed from the information given.

Miss Walls said in part that intelligent information, from a wholesome source, telling the truth to children, when questions were asked, especially during preschool age, would tend to open up an avenue of confidence to the parents, and self-made modesty and self-consciousness would be averted. Curiosity is a normal instinct and unless satisfied by proper and truthful explanations may become tragic and end in a mental illness in later years. It was impressed on the group that information should be obtained by parents and given to the children, rather than have the child find it out from vulgar and unreliable sources. The kind of attitude the parent portrays, forms the foundation of the relationship of future years between child and parent, and unless wisely stated, a wall is established that can never be scaled. A number of books were mentioned which are helpful to parents.

The next lesson will be given in June on the Adolescent Child.

Mrs. C. Lenox Entertains Palmyra Unit

Mrs. Clarence Lenox entertained the members of the Palmyra Unit of Home Bureau Thursday afternoon, May 9. The chairman called the meeting to order and the usual business followed.

The local leaders, Mrs. Carl Straw and Mrs. Mark Williams, then took charge and gave the lesson "Fitting Problems." They drafted, altered, and fitted a waist pattern to one of the members present. This proved to be very interesting and much valuable information was gained from this lesson.

Mrs. Verne Straw showed articles that could be made in connection with the minor project, such as rake weaving and rug making.

The meeting then adjourned and a short period of recreation followed. The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Schott.

Miss Helmick Entertains for Miss Bills

Miss Dorothy Helmick delightfully entertained Saturday evening at her home with a miscellaneous shower and bridge luncheon for Miss Frances Bills who is soon to be married to Arthur Hill of Naperville, and whose engagement was recently announced.

The decorations were most attractive and artistic in violet and yellow. A dainty luncheon or rather, supper, was served.

Prizes at bridge were awarded to Mrs. Henry Hubbell, first; Mrs. Chas. Redebaugh, second; and Mrs. Crawford Thomas who won the traveling prize.

Miss Bills received a number of lovely gifts in the shower from her friends with best wishes for happiness in the new home-to-be.

1/2 teaspoon celery salt

1 teaspoon chopped parsley

1 tablespoon chopped green pepper

1 cup diced cooked chicken

3 egg whites, beaten

Melt butter, add flour and when blended add milk and cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add yolks and seasonings. Beat 2 minutes. Fold in rest of ingredients. Pour into buttered mold (ring mold is excellent). Set in pan hot water and bake 35 minutes in moderately slow oven. Remove from oven and let stand in water 5 minutes. Carefully unmold. Garnish with cress or parsley.

Frozen Fruit Salad

1 cup diced peaches

2-3 cup diced pineapple

2-3 cup diced pears

2 tablespoons lemon juice

4 tablespoons sugar

1 cup whipped cream

2-3 cup stiff mayonnaise

Mix cream and mayonnaise. Add rest of ingredients. Pour into tray in mechanical refrigerator and in about 4 hours the salad will be frozen. Serve on lettuce and top with more mayonnaise.

If desired the salad can be frozen by pouring into mold, sealing tightly and burying 4 hours in 4 parts chopped ice and one part coarse salt.

Mix dressing and butter. Spread on wafers. Top with cheese. Arrange in shallow pan. Bake until well puffed. Sprinkle with paprika and serve fresh.

Birthday Supper

Honors Mrs. Potts

Mrs. Lee Potts was honored on Sunday evening when a group of relatives and friends were entertained at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Winn with a picnic supper.

The happy affair was given in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Potts who was greatly surprised. The afternoon preceding the supper was enjoyably spent in visiting, games and music, and after the tempting supper Mrs. Potts was presented with a nice gift from all present with best wishes for future happy birthdays.

The GRADUATION WATCH

chosen with care

To THE GRADUATE, your gift watch is the symbol of an important event. So, of course, only a fine watch will do.

You want it to be beautiful and modern, of course. And accurate, too. But above all, be sure that it has the lasting beauty of genuine precious metal.

Our selection of fine watches includes the newest models—many of them in cases of precious metal by Wadsworth. And prices this year are lower than ever before.

We will gladly give you the benefit of our advice when you select a Graduation Watch.

"Cross Roads Store", Sponsored by O.E.S. Unqualified Success

The performance of the entire cast of the musical comedy, "The Cross Roads Store," at the Masonic Temple, Tuesday, was just what that large audience expected of them, for this excellent comedy provides an opportunity for each one to display their talents. The repeated applause and the roars of laughter proved that the ability of this group of young people is thoroughly appreciated. Dixon has always enjoyed an enviable reputation for its pretty girls and the group that took part in this play added a beauty and charm that would attract a full attendance wherever they appear. In addition to the regular show, there were some exceptionally clever dancing specialties and also a style show by a group of twenty very pretty girls in the latest gowns from the Kathryn Beard shop.

James Ketchin, as the young proprietor of the store, had a most interesting part for he not only enters into all of the dialogues but has to restrain himself from making too ardent love to "Babs."

Genevieve Dodd rode her bicycle in and out of the store with a reckless abandon that threatened everyone, even John Hofmann, who climbed up his well rig.

The performance is to be repeated this evening at 8:00 o'clock and another full house is expected for more than enough tickets have been sold already.

The program includes: Scene—A General Store somewhere in the Middle West.

Larry Lackoynne, young proprietor of the store—James Ketchin.

Oscar Pumpersput, local pump driver—John Hofmann.

Barbara Shears (Babs), Larry's sweetheart—Etta Finney.

Emaline Shyly, green as the spring meadows—Genevieve Dodd.

GREAT MOTHERS

Abigail Alcott

IN "Little Women," Louisa May Alcott painted a word-portrait of her mother: "A stout, motherly lady with a 'can-I-help-you?' look about her which was truly delightful. She was not a particularly handsome person, but mothers are always lovely to their children."

That was what the four Alcott sisters thought, at any rate. Abigail Alcott, the wife of the New England educator and philosopher, had many endearing qualities. She was loving and sympathetic, had a fine sense of fun not overshadowed by her lofty ideals. Her sense of humor was fortunate, for her also lofty idealistic husband often left her burdened with material cares.

So it was when under his leadership "Fruitlands," an experimental agricultural colony, was established at Harvard, Massachusetts, with eleven colonists, including the Alcotts. Mrs. Alcott took care of them all, and her constant foresight kept the colony going.

When it finally disbanded, she went to Boston and became what would today be called a social worker.

Mrs. Alcott had three simple rules by which she brought up her four daughters: "Rule yourself. Love your neighbor. Do the duty which lies nearest you."

Louisa May Alcott early came to see and appreciate her mother's cares, and one reason for her pursuit of a writing career was the hope that some day she might be able to lift burdens from "Marmee's" tired shoulders.

When Louisa was too busy writing to have time for meals, "Marmee" would bring cups of hot tea or bites for hasty eating. "Moods," her first novel, was dedicated to her mother, "my earliest patron, kindest critic, dearest reader."

As the family circle was gradually broken up by death and marriage, Louisa and Mrs. Alcott grew ever closer.

With the success of "Little Women" and its sequels and the prosperity that came to a popular author, Louisa was able to do for her mother everything that she had wanted to. "Mother is to be easy if money can do it," she wrote. "She seems to be, now, and my long-cherished dream has come true; for she sits in a pleasant room with no work, no care, and no poverty to worry, but comfort all about her."

That was Louisa's great joy. She wrote of her mother: "Life was hard for her and no one understood all she had to bear but we, her children."

At last the pleasant room was empty. No longer had Louisa a "Marmee" to think for, plan for, care for. "A great warmth seems gone out of my life," she wrote. Now that she was no longer needed, she too was free to go.

This is the tenth of a series of biographies of "Great Mothers," prepared by the Golden Rule Mothers Day Committee, of which Mrs. James Roosevelt is honorary chairman. The Committee, which is sponsoring the nation-wide observance of Mothers Day "the Golden Rule Way" on Sunday, May 12, suggests the following paraphrase of the Golden Rule: "Whatsoever you would that others should do for you, you would that others should do for you; if she had opportunity, do on Mothers Day for other mothers and children, victims of present-day economic readjustments." An illustrated booklet of similar biographical sketches, poems, and tributes to mothers may be had for 10c for shipping charges, from the Golden Rule Mothers Day Committee, 60 East 42nd Street, New York.

BOWMAN RIDING BOOTS!

There are thousands of women who have taken to horse-back riding lately, for health and sport, and we are ready with the proper footwear.

But, you don't have to ride horse-back to wear riding boots! Riding habits are worn for hiking, walking, and all kinds of wear, and they tell us that right down-town in New York, you see hundreds of girls with boots on . . . and perhaps they have never even seen a horse!

Stylish . . . Comfortable!

This boot comes in Tan Calf Leather. Also in White Elk.

Strap over instep keeps boots from slipping.

Chas. Rosenthal Marries Miss Wildenstein

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rosenthal of New York City, are expected to arrive in Dixon Thursday at noon, or in the evening, to visit his mother, Mrs. Max Rosenthal of Peoria Avenue.

Mrs. Rosenthal has received word of the marriage of her son, Charles, in New York City, Tuesday at 2 o'clock, at the City Hall, to Miss Andree Wildenstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Wildenstein. A municipal judge performed the quiet wedding ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal were entertained at a buffet luncheon at the home of her parents, which was attended by about fifty intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wildenstein are sailing on Saturday for Paris, where they will spend several months. Mr. Rosenthal is in the insurance business, with his cousin, Sidney Bachrach.

IS GUEST AT J. A. SNYDER HOME—

Mrs. Wm. Donahue of Chicago, the former Laura Drew of Rock Falls, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Snyder.

NAVY'S PACIFIC FLIGHT PROVES OUR SECURITY

The great ocean flight of those four dozen navy fighting planes is a magnificent spectacle and a great demonstration of the long-range striking power of the modern air force; yet it would be easy to go entirely too far in drawing lessons from the performance.

As a proof that naval warfare has been transformed by addition of a new weapon of vast potentialities, the flight is without parallel. But it does not yet prove the truth of all those excited assertions that our secure isolation is ended and that we are within easy reach of the aerial fleets of foreign powers.

A flight of this kind in mid-ocean is a great achievement, to be sure. But a great battle fleet was on duty along the route.

There were no anti-aircraft defenses to leap over, no squadrons of hostile planes to brush aside, no obligation on the four dozen pilots to return to their starting point without a stop.

In other words, this flight does not prove that a European or Asiatic power could find it simple to send an air fleet over to bomb our cities. That may be possible some day, but it certainly is not the case today.

It is rather important to keep that fact in mind. We have a preparedness group in this country which is just about as militaristic as any similar group overseas; and this group can be expected to use this navy flight as the basis for a demand that we increase our aerial armaments until they are the equal of any other such armaments on earth—on the ground that we shall not be "secure" until we do so.

A recent survey (published in the Aircraft Yearbook for 1935) shows that we rank fifth in battle planes. France, Russia, Great Britain, and Italy are ahead of us.

We have 2060 fighting planes, of which about 1600 are wholly up-to-date; and the Yearbook remarks that this is less than half the strength required to put us "on anything like an equal footing with other powers."

But the point to remember in all this is that we don't need to be on an equal footing with these other powers. The Atlantic and Pacific oceans have not yet shrunk to the dimensions of the Great Lakes.

Our air fleet may be outclassed by four others, but it would most certainly be able to overwhelm any hostile air fleet that could actually reach our shores.

That is all an advocate of national security can ask. We don't contemplate aggressive action overseas. We can be satisfied with security at home.

And this Pacific flight falls far short of proving that the airplane has been developed to the point where it destroys that security.

"INSANITY" ON A SANE BASIS

It is surprising how injection of a little plain common sense into the involved framework of criminal law can look like a startling innovation.

Oklahoma has just passed a new law to cover the "insanity defense" in murder cases. It provides that if a defendant in a murder trial be acquitted on the ground of insanity, he shall be confined in a lunatic asylum as a dangerous and irresponsible person.

This, to a public grown weary of the "insanity defense" racket, looks like nothing but ordinary good sense. If a man commits murder because he cannot control his emotions, he cannot distinguish right from wrong, and thus cannot be held accountable for his acts, it would seem only logical to lock him in a place provided for such people.

But the Oklahoma action comes as a surprising change, just the same. The surprise indicates how this kind of defense has been abused.

MEASURE OF PROGRESS

One good barometer of general business conditions is the amount of freight traffic carried on the Great Lakes; and it is encouraging to note that figures compiled this year at the Sault Ste. Marie locks, connecting Lake Superior with the lower lakes, indicate a strong pickup in such traffic.

The locks opened in April. By the end of the month some 888,000 tons of freight had passed through them—a tremendous gain over last year, which is only partly accounted for by the fact that the locks opened 13 days earlier this year than in 1934.

The freight that moves by the Soo is mostly bulk freight—iron ore, coal, wheat, and flour; the kind of freight the movement of which in huge quantities peaks a general business revival.

These figures for April indicate pretty clearly that some kind of revival actually is taking place.

SIMPLE BASIS FOR PEACE

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, addressing a midwest audience the other night, remarked that the danger of America's getting involved in war is largely a figment of the imaginations of the super-preparedness people.

"The maddest armament race ever staged is going on between the United States and Japan," he said. "Yet I think that war with Japan is improbable. If there is 5 cents' worth of common sense in the countries, there will be no war."

It is rather hard to quarrel with that viewpoint, for the simple reason that the ordinary American finds it extremely hard to think of any really good reason why America and Japan ever need to fight each other. As the senator suggests, a modicum of common sense ought to be enough to keep peace unbroken for an indefinite period.

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Wee Dotty said, "I really think we'd best keep close watch on that ink. If that large bottle tips once more, the contents may be lost."

"You're right," replied the old ink man, "We'll watch it as closely as we can. I cannot buy more magic ink like that, at any cost."

Then Scouty said, "Say how about the promise that you made? No doubt, you plan to bring forth brand new friends with whom we can have fun."

"I hope you pick some other lad. I drew the pirate. He was bad." The ink man answered, "Let me think. I'll see what can be done."

He scratched his head and then said, "Well, perhaps a small clown would be swell. I'll sketch one on some paper. Then to life he'll quickly come."

"Oh, gee," said Goldy. "Must it be a clown? We've seen a lot, you see. Why, Duncy is a clown, himself. I think that clowns are dumb."

"Hey, I resent that," Duncy cried. Then Goldy rushed up to his side and said, "Aw, can't you take a joke? I'm only kidding you."

The ink man then said, with a frown, "Don't argue. We'll forget the clown. I have another hunch. I know you'll like it, when I'm through."

He dropped down to his hands and knees, and said, "I'll draw some men, with ease. They'll be strange little fellows whom you've never met before."

Three sheets of paper were spread out. "This will be pretty good, no doubt," said Coppy. "Gee, it's hard to wait, to see what is in store."

The ink man drew for quite a while. It made all of the Times smile to see three little men appear. "Why, they are gnomes," said one.

"They're just as cute as they can be, and very shortly we will see if they are friendly little fellows, anxious for some fun."

(The gnomes come to life in the next story.)

ually visualize the course of the arteries.

At times the arteries of the extremities can be pictured by means of the ordinary x-ray. This is possible when the arteries have become hardened and contain calcium deposits which cast x-ray shadows. But such visualization of the arteries is limited and is not sufficiently detailed.

Attempts to visualize the arteries have been made ever since Roentgen's famous discovery. Such attempts, however, were not fruitful until recently. During the last 10 years a variety of substances have been used as an aid to the x-ray of the arteries, and of these substances thorium dioxide has been found most satisfactory.

A solution of this substance is injected into the artery to be visualized and an x-ray is promptly taken. The shadows cast are clear and one can see the path of the arteries.

The x-ray of arteries is of help in diagnosis, in determining the nature of the circulatory difficulty, and in securing information on a variety of associated factors.

The technique promises to be particularly valuable in the study of disease processes affecting the blood vessels in the extremities. There is a great deal concerning the abnormal changes which the circulatory system undergoes which still is unknown to us. By visualizing the pathologic changes as they occur we are bound to secure valuable and useful information.

This technique of visualizing the arteries has also proved of service to the surgeon.

X-Raying The Arteries

By a variety of methods such as touch, study of the pulse, observation of the color of the skin and its reaction to postural changes, it is possible to determine in a general sort of way the competency of the circulation of blood through the extremities.

But in order to discover whether any given portion of the arterial system is affected by disease, and in what manner it may be affected, it is necessary that we act-

THE DERBY HAT

There is an old derby
Familiar to see,
As famous as any
Old derby could be.
Been worn thirty years,
And it cost a few cents,
Although at four dollars
It once was expensive.It came from a shelf
In an out-of-date store,
Where nothing remains
But the space anymore.
Where traffic was slow,
And the trading moved on
Just limping and lagging
Until it was gone.It covers the head
Of a jolly, old man,
Where hair used to grow,
But now nevermore can.
It shelters the brow
And it shieldeth the eyes,
Of one whom a prophet
Might be in disguise.The color has faded,
For once it was black,
But now it is slightly
Just out of that track.
The hue has been changed
By sunshine and storm,
But still the old hat
Has just the same form.It rides on the head
Like inverted canoe;
Embraced by the sun
And caressed by the dew.
It's with him wherever
He chances to go;
Protection from rain,
Or the sleet and the snow.The winds sometimes frolic
And blow in despair,
To try to dethrone
The old hat resting there;
But seldom their antics
Are able to win.
The hat snuggles closer;
The old man will grin.Here comes the old derby
Upon the bald dome;
The only location
It feels quite at home.
Oh yes, there are crowns
And coronets, rare,
But none to this derby
Can ever compare.It adds to the grace
And charm of a sage,
That always is found
In years of old-age.
And as its proud owner
Walks by with his cane,
The old derby hat
Enlightens his brain.Beia R. Halderman,

HOW FISH BREATHE

Fish breathe by exacting the air contained in the water which they draw through their mouths. On its way to the gills of the fish this water passes over a series of plates carrying a large supply of blood-vessels. The oxygen which is in the water is thus brought into contact with the blood of the fish.

Martin Insull Again Fights Extradition

Toronto, May 15—(AP)—Martin

J. Insull, whose extradition is sought by the United States that he may be tried on fraud charges, was remanded on bail of $10,000 when he appeared Tuesday before Justice G. P. McParland.

Hearing of the charge, brought by the United States District Court of Northern Illinois, was adjourned to June 11 and Insull granted his freedom on bail supplied by John Kipling Curran, Toronto contractor, and Insull's own recognizance.

Insull, who had been living in the town of Orillia, 80 miles north of Toronto, came to court voluntarily to answer the warrant issued by Justice Hope last Friday at the request of P. A. Bohne, United States Consul in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott and three daughters of DeKalb were week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kness.

At a meeting of the board of directors of District No. 58, Miss Katherine Lehman of Dixon was hired to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Lucille Buck in the second room, Paul Vaupel of Ashton was hired to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Lorene Crum in room three. The Pineview school, north of town closed Friday with a picnic dinner. The teacher Miss Nina Coffman and the pupils with a number of patrons of the school were treated to ice cream by the district. Miss Coffman will return for another year.

Miss Annis Moore has been engaged to teach the Eisenberg school south of town, for the coming year.

William Townbridge, Fred Johnson and Emil Milkie motored to Macomb Saturday and returned with a truck load of soy beans for the farmers north of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady and family

Clifford from north of town, Mr. and Mrs. George Miller and daughter, Vivian, from south of town and daughter Miss Eunice Miller. The occasion was the birthday anniversary of Mr. Miller and also Mother's Day. Mr. Miller, or Dan as he is known to everybody, has a large circle of friends who will wish him many more birthday anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Orner of Wilmette were week end guests of relatives here. Elsewhere in these items will be found a program for the benefit band concert. This is a worthy cause and we are assured that the money will be kept at home and not taken out of town as is often the case with home talent plays and other amusements.

As we approach the close of the school year and hear on every side something about commencement we are reminded of the alumni. What has become of the Franklin Grove alumni? When was the last alumni? Who were elected officers at the last alumni? Why not have one this year?

Mrs. Rebecca Colwell and daughter Miss Blanche entertained for Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. Ed Arnold of Ashton; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Claire Colwell, Mrs. Anna Colwell and daughter Miss Lulu, Misses Eunice and Lucy Gilbert and brother Joe of this community.

The Dysart school, south of town closed Friday afternoon. The teacher Mrs. Glenn Wagner and pupils, with a large number of patrons, enjoyed a picnic dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kness had as their guests for dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Scott and three daughters of DeKalb, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hatch, daughter Miss June and son Johnny of this place.

Misses Adella and Alice Helmershausen attended the home coming and school picnic at the Wiselohr school southeast of town. Miss Adella was a former teacher of that school.

All of the churches of the town observed Mother's Day with appropriate exercises. In all four churches Mother's Day sermons were preached in the morning. In the evening a very excellent program was given in the Church of the Brethren. The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church had a Mother's Day program also in the evening.

The juniors of the Franklin Grove Community high school are very busy preparing for the Junior-Senior banquet on the 17th of May at the Colonial Inn at Grand Detour.

Mr. and Mrs. George Blocher from north of town were dinner guests Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Group and family.

The Aid Society of the Methodist church will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Lincoln. Members of all the Circles are especially invited, and urged to be present as business of importance is to be voted upon.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Banker spent Saturday and Sunday night at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Paul Meyers and family. Sunday the entire group enjoyed dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Banker and family at Elgin.

Class Entertains Mothers

The Sunbeam class of the Presbyterian Sunday school with their teacher, Miss Blanche Colwell entertained their mothers with a tea Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Colwell in honor of Mother's Day.

The afternoon was spent in social visiting and playing games at which Mrs. Will Black, Mrs. Carl Kness and Mrs. Frank Hatch won prizes. Each mother was presented a handkerchief, as a souvenir. Lovely refreshments consisting of sandwiches and tea, salad and cake was enjoyed by the following mothers and daughters:

Mrs. Carl Kness and daughter Murel.
Mrs. Ada Peterman and daughter Miss Georgia.
Mrs. Roy Miller and daughter Miss Mary Jean.
Mrs. Frank Hatch and daughter Miss June.
Mrs. William Black and daughter Miss Marie.
Mrs. Charles Pyle and daughter Miss Dorothy.
Mrs. Charles Ramsdell and daughter Miss Frances.
Mrs. Winn Wasson and daughter Miss Rebecca.
Mrs. Blanche Colwell and daughter Miss Blanche.
Mrs. C. P. Blecking and daughter Miss Florence.
Miss Marjorie Weldon.

Invited guests were Mrs. Daniel Miller and daughter Miss Eunice.

P. T. A. Meeting

The last P. T. A. meeting for the year of the Carthage school, north of town was held Friday evening at the school house. A good attendance was present for the last meeting.

The business was conducted by the president, Mrs. Perry Meyers, during which officers were elected for the ensuing year. After which the following program was enjoyed:

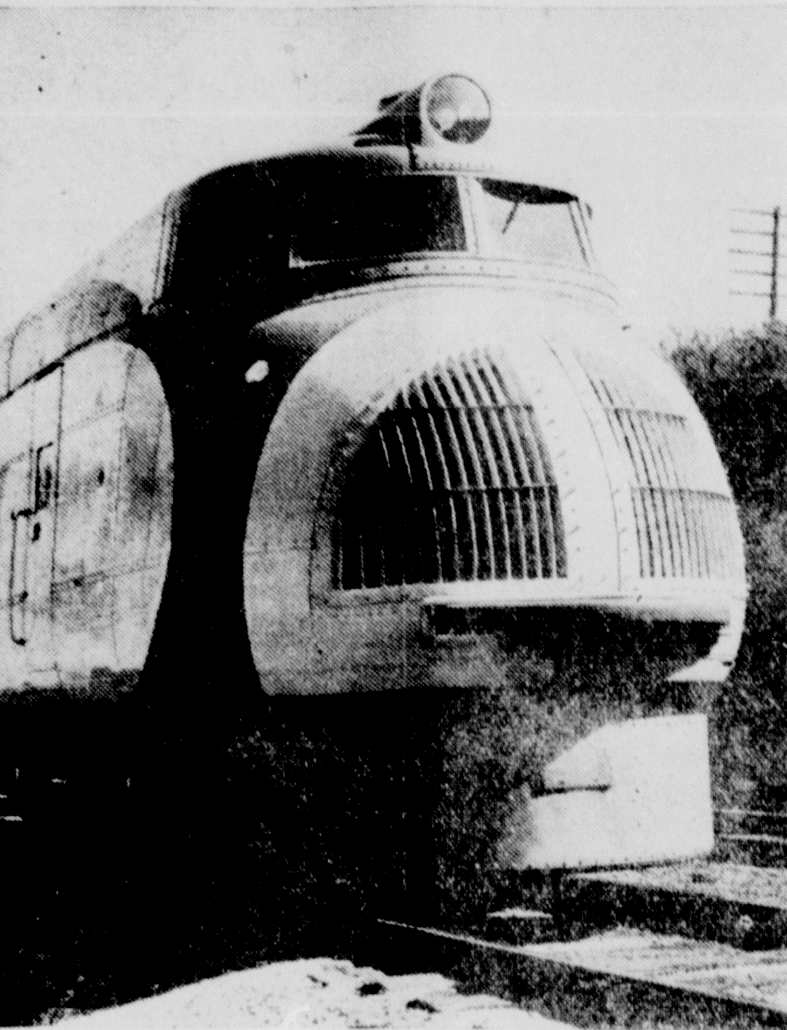

Drum Solo—Paul Jennings of Ashton.
Health Talk—Miss Helen Stonich.
Vocal Solo—Mother—Mildred Hawkins.
Vocal Duet—Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jennings of Ashton.
Vocal Duet—Oscar Larson and Walter Bennett.

After the close of the program the newly elected officers were installed by Mrs. Perry Meyers, retiring president. The following are the officers:

Meat, Fermented Drink

Meat is a fermented drink made of water and honey with malt and yeast. Alcoholic drinks made from honey were common in ancient times and during the Middle Ages throughout Europe. The Greeks had a drink called hydromel and the Romans one called mulsa (Latin mulsum) which consisted of wine boiled and mingled with honey. Methleglin (a Welsh name) is one modern form sometimes made with spices.

PORTLAND SERVICE GETS SECOND U. P. STREAMLINER

The Union Pacific's No. 2 Streamliner, the world's fastest, long-distance, Pullman-equipped, passenger train which several months ago set two world records for speed and broke two American transcontinental records in its run from Los Angeles to New York City, is to go into regular service between Chicago and Portland, Oregon, in the next few weeks, according to a joint announcement of the Union Pacific System and the Chicago & North Western Railway. The train will have a schedule of approximately 40 hours. It consists of seven cars including three sleeping cars, a diner-lounge and coach-buffet car. It is powered with a 1200 horsepower, 16 cylinder, V-type, 2-cycle Diesel engine, the largest, single-unit engine of the kind ever applied to railroad passenger service.

President—Miss Dorris Thompson.

Vice Pres.—George Bennett.

Sec.—Mrs. Art Hawkins.

Treas.—Miss Blanche Withey.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, Sept. 13 with the new officers in charge.

Community Club

The Teals Corner Community club met Friday evening at the school house with a good attendance. The business was opened by the president, Ernest Fair. After which the program committee took charge; and presented the following program which was very much enjoyed.

Song, Old Black Joe, by the Community club.
Reading—Thelma Fair.
Song, Silver Haired Daddy of Mine—School children.

Community Paper, composed and read by Mrs. Ernest Fair.
Piano duet—Jeanette and Florence Meyers.
Song, Till We Meet Again—Community club.

A Busy Class

The 8th grade of the local school and their teacher Miss Lorence Crum are very busy and working hard these days getting ready for the graduating exercises to be held May 28 when they graduate from the 8th grade into high school. It is a very important step in the lives of these young people and we trust that they may be permitted to finish high school with honors. Those in the class are: Frances Riley, Marvin Brown, Gerald Emmert, Floyd Bruche, Junior Herwig, Billy Ives, Robert Kint, June Hatch, Josephine Kelley and Ruby Kinney.

Senior Class Activities

The calendar for the senior class of the Franklin Grove Community High School during the closing weeks of school is as follows:

Junior-Senior banquet May 17.
Senior play May 24th.
Baccalaureate May 26th in the Church of the Brethren, Rev. Studebaker, pastor of the church will deliver the sermon.

Commencement May 28 in the M. E. church. Dr. Gordon of Rockford will give the address of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yocum and son Dale, spent Mother's Day in Compton at the home of his mother, Mrs. Yocum.

Miss Helen Ling who teaches school at Rockford spent the week end with her father, Henry Ling.

Prof. Wilbur Mong who teaches school at Belvidere spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mong, east of town.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jake Adams a son May 12 at Grand Detour. The mother will be remembered as Miss Hilda Yocum.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fisher entertained about 45 relatives with a scramble dinner on Mother's day in honor of the former's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fisher of Dixon. A lovely dinner was served at noon, the afternoon being spent in social visiting.

Meat, Fermented Drink

Meat is a fermented drink made of water and honey with malt and yeast. Alcoholic drinks made from honey were common in ancient times and during the Middle Ages throughout Europe. The Greeks had a drink called hydromel and the Romans one called mulsa (Latin mulsum) which consisted of wine boiled and mingled with honey. Another Great Service to Telegraph Readers

The DIXON TELEGRAPH Makes Available

$1,000 Life Insurance

(And More)

A Wonderful Life Insurance Value Offered to Our Readers

The Dixon Evening Telegraph has several times offered to the public accident insurance policies at a very low cost. By special arrangement with the Rural Bankers Life Insurance Company we are now able to offer to the public a life insurance policy at the lowest cost ever offered to the public by a responsible life insurance Company.

Millions of people have lost their life insurance during this depression because they were unable to pay their premiums. Telegraph readers can now obtain insurance protection at a cost in keeping with present day reduced incomes. Pure Protection life insurance without costly frills.

This is a special life insurance policy and is available to Telegraph readers only. It can only be obtained through the Telegraph by signing and sending us the attached coupon. This policy is for $1000, or more, depending upon the age of the applicant, for only $1.00 a month or $11 a year if paid in advance. The amount of insurance varies according to the age at the time of death but it is never less than $1000. (See table of cash benefits on the opposite page.)

No medical examination is required to obtain this policy. No vexatious delays, no formalities. Read the coupon carefully and send it with $1.00 as directed.

We are able to offer only one of these policies to each person, but every member of your family, between the ages of 10 and 45, may have one of these policies, if in normal health and living in the State of Illinois. At the end of the policy year in which age 45 is attained, this policy automatically becomes a policy for $1000, without any medical examination, for a premium of $2.50 a month.

Although this is a special policy, it contains all the features of the company's regular life insurance policies.

If you wish to pay for a year in advance, send $11.00 and you will receive the Company's receipt and policy with the premium paid for one year.

The Rural Bankers Life Insurance Company is virtually a Dixon company. All of the Directors and Officers, with two or three exceptions, are Dixon men of the highest standing in this community.

The company was organized and will operate under the strict Illinois Law of 1927. Under this statute, companies like the Rural Bankers

Life are required to deposit their guarantee reserves with the Illinois Director of Insurance, and they are the only Illinois life insurance companies that are required to do so. The insurance laws of Illinois are now counted the strictest of any State in the Union, not even excepting the laws of New York and Massachusetts, which have been held up as models of safety for so many years.

If you die your beneficiary will promptly receive a check for the full amount of the policy. The company makes a specialty of prompt payment of claims.

The policy is non-cancelable except for fraud or misrepresentation.

If the policy is lapsed for non-payment of premiums, it may be reinstated at any time within three years subject to evidence of insurability.

If your beneficiary dies or you marry or re-marry, you may change the beneficiary at any time.

If you wish, you may change to any other form of policy issued by the company at your then attained age.

DIVIDENDS: This is a mutual company and has no stockholders. All of the profits belong to the policyholders and you will receive your share of the net earnings of the company from year to year.

YANKEES NEED HITTERS' AID IMMEDIATELY

Batting Averages Unusually Low for New York

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
New York, May 15.—(AP)—The "Hitless Wonders" of the American League no longer are the Chicago White Sox but the New York Yankees.

It's only a coincidence that the departure of the Babe Ruth has been followed by an abrupt decline in the batting power of the Yankee machine. The Babe himself is hitting .171, but that's no reason for Joe McCarthy's more youthful and agile crew to take the slugging tobbogan at the same time.

The Yankees not only are at the bottom of the league but so far not one of the regulars has clubbed his way into the .300 class. Tony Lazzeri, now hitting around .270 tops the list.

The other regulars are all far down, and Captain Lou Gehrig, who was last year's batting king with a mark of .363, has only a pale .253 to show for his efforts so far, though he collected three hits yesterday.

It may be the weather or that the boys are pressing a bit. Certainly hitters like Gehrig, Bill Dickey, Ben Chapman and Earle Combs—all with life-time marks of .310 to .345—figure to do much better as the season develops.

Pitchers Need Hitters.
But the Yankee pitching staff, already feeling the strain, can't continue to keep the club in a contending position without quick and substantial assistance from the hitters.

It used to be bulletin news when the Yankees were shut out. They went more than two years at one stretch without being coated with white-wash but they have been blanked three times so far this spring.

Lefty Gomez has been the victim of two shutouts, losing 1-0 to Wes Ferrell in the season's opener and dropping a 3-0 decision to Schoolboy Rowe at Detroit this week. The Castilian can appreciate how Freddy Fitzsimmons of the Giants felt after his team failed to get him a run in four games last year.

Meanwhile the Detroit Tigers have emerged from a hitting slump nearly as discouraging as that of the Yankees. The champions seem to have hit their 1934 stride again. They are in a good position to come from behind, the way they did last year.

Tigers Coming Back.
At this stage of the 1934 race Mickey Cochrane's crew was struggling to stay in the first division. Rowe and Auker had not yet steadied down to their best work. Now the Tigers are sixth but they are only four and a half games out of first place and only three and a half games behind the club they figure to have to beat—the Cleveland Indians.

Greenberg, Goslin and Cochrane himself have had a tough time finding their batting eyes this spring, with the result they have been keeping Gehrig company in the lower brackets, but they look to be well on the road to recovery now.

They have fattened themselves on Yankee pitching, which ought to be an encouragement inasmuch as Cochrane picked New York as his club's most dangerous rival this year.

HOLDS COOK CO. SCHOOLS GIVEN ILLEGAL SHARE

Attorney General Kerner Rules State Must Compensate Downstate

Springfield, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—The controversy over state aid to schools today found Attorney General Otto Kerner ruling that the Auditor's office has given Cook county schools more than their share of funds and that the state should repay downstate districts for the balance.

Kerner's opinion, given a Senate sub-committee headed by Thomas Gunning of Princeton, upheld the contention of the Illinois State Teachers Association that the state should appropriate $3,574,049.93 to correct alleged over-payments to Cook county for the 1930 to 1932 revenue years.

Followed Wrong System.
It held the wrong system was followed by Auditor Edward J. Barrett and his Republican predecessor, Oscar Nelson, in handling the state school distributive fund during years of tax delinquency when the full $10,500,000 annual appropriation could not be paid.

"No money from this fund should be withheld from any county because that county did not collect sufficient to pay its proportionate share of the state fund," Kerner said. "Such would entirely nullify the very reason for the fund, x x x."

"I do not believe the state should or can allot to one county upon a one hundred per cent basis and to another on a less percentage."

The teachers association a month ago contended that during the three years in question Cook county received 85 per cent of its share of the school distributive fund, while downstate got 65 per cent, although the downstate area paid a larger proportion of its state tax bills.

Declines Comment.
School organizations also are asking that the state aid appropriation, designed to give the most help to the poorest districts, should be increased from $10,500,000 to $30,000,000 annually and that provision should be made for paying $7,000,000 of claimed arrearages.

Auditor Barrett, when informed of the Kerner opinion, declined to comment until it had been studied by his office.
A number of legislators have threatened to file civil suits, seeking to force payment of the amount they claim is due schools of their districts.

While Kerner has held the schools are entitled to that sum, his opinion is not mandatory. Either the legislature, of its own accord, must follow the ruling made by him and appropriate the amount due or civil action, probably directed against the Auditor's bond, must be taken before the money would be available.

PIRATES WON INITIAL FROM PHILADELPHIA

Birofer Seems Ready to Make Fans Forget French

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Maybe big Ralph Birofer will fill that large hole in the Pittsburgh Pirates' southpaw pitching staff after all.

When the Pirates sent Larry French and Freddie Lindstrom to the Chicago Cubs for Guy Bush, Jim Weaver and Babe Herman, Manager Pie Traynor evidently was counting heavily upon Birofer to take charge of all the left-handed pitching the club would need. French, of course, is one of the National League's ranking southpaws, but Birofer, in his first full season with the Corsairs, won 11 games and lost 12 for a fifth-place outfit in 1934.

For a time this spring, it looked as though the Pirates had made a bad guess for Birofer couldn't get untracked. It was not until yesterday, as a matter of fact, that the young left-hander succeeded in pitching a complete game and in chalking up his first victory.

Gave 11 Hits.
Birofer gave the Phillies 11 hits but was so effective in the clinches that it was not until the eighth that a double by Ethan Allen and a single by John Moore saved the Phillies from a shutout. The Pirates, in hitting form, shelled the reformed infielder, Bill (Bucky) Walters, and John Pezullo for 14 hits and won, 8-1.

Walters, the only pitcher on the Phillies' staff who has pitched a complete game this year, got by the first two innings but the Corsairs jumped on him for six hits, including doubles by Lloyd Waner, Gus Suhr and Harry Lavagetto, and five runs in the third before Pezullo could be summoned to the rescue. That, to all intents and purposes, was the end of the ball game.

The victory was the Pirates' sixth in 11 games in the east and left them a game and a half behind the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals.
This was the only National League game that escaped the weather man's persistent jinx and only two American League contests could be played.

Won Two In A Row.
Getting good pitching from Alvin Crowder, the Detroit Tigers made it two in a row from the New York Yankees 10 to 4, and climbed to within a single game of the Yankees and Washington Senators who are tied for fourth position.

The champions, hopping on Johnny Broaca for three runs in the first and on Russ Van Atta for three more in the third, two coming in on walks with the bases filled, never were in trouble. Crowder allowed ten hits where they would do the least damage.

Second place Cleveland got three hit pitching from Mel Harder and beat the Senators, 4-2. Hal Trosky's fifth home run with two on in the sixth was the blow that wrecked the Senators and Earl Whitehill. The victory put the Indians within a game of the Chicago White Sox.

GIRL WONDER AGAIN RULED INELIGIBLE

Didrikson Hits New Snag in Effort To Be Golfer

New York, May 15.—(AP)—A new golfing cause celebre threatened to develop today out of the disbarment of Mildred (Babe) Didrikson by the amateur status committee of the United States golf association.

The greatest all-around woman athlete in this country, Miss Didrikson was ruled ineligible for amateur golf competition because of her professionalism in other sports.

The decision, made "for the best interest of the game," prevents the famed Texan from playing not only in the Southern Tournament at Louisville next week but the National championship at Minneapolis in August. Miss Didrikson had set her heart on the latter.

If the Texan wishes to play in the National championship three years hence the way may be open to her. It was indicated that the so-called "three year probationary rule" would apply in her case.

Rules Defined.
This rule provides that "any applicant for re-instatement must have acted so as to come within the definition of an amateur golfer for a period of three consecutive years immediately preceding the date of application."

Precedent for the U. S. G. A. decision was set in 1926 when Mary K. Browne, tennis and golf star, joined C. C. Pyle's touring tennis professionals. She was barred from amateur competition by the U. S. G. A., but since has been restored to good standing.

The outstanding competitor in the women's division of the 1932 Olympics, Miss Didrikson turned pro the same year after a dispute with the Southern A. A. U. over the use of her picture for advertising purposes. An investigation cleared her but she remained a pro playing baseball with the House of David team, basketball and billiards.

She took up golf in 1932 and progressed so rapidly that she won the Texas state championship a few weeks ago.

CRUES OF PROTEST.
Ablene, Tex., May 15.—(AP)—A chorus of protest arose in Texas today against the United States Golf Association ruling that Mildred (Babe) Didrikson may not compete as an amateur.

Babe, the wonder girl athlete of the 1932 Olympics, accepted the decision philosophically although with surprise and obvious disappointment.
"Bad mistake, big joke and dirty deal" and even harsher words came from Dallas, where members of the Texas Professional Golfers' Association were in session.
Miss Didrikson's home club at Beaumont, however, took a much stronger stand, demanding detailed reason for the findings of the national golf organization, which resulted in refusal of her entry in the Southern women's championship to be played at Louisville, Ky., beginning May 30. The club asked for a

FOUR RECORDS ENDANGERED BY PREP TRACKMEN

Franklin Grove High School Ace Mentioned Dash Menace

Hanson of Franklin Grove, who qualified for competition in the dashes events of the state track meet, as a result of his performance in the LaSalle-Peru sectional is considered one of the threats to Bob Packard's title Saturday. Franklin Grove's pride of the paths defeated Rube Thompson, Dixon dash man in a practice meet early this season.

Champaign, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—At least four records are in danger in the state high school track and field meet here this week-end. The meet, drawing 454 boys from 159 schools, will stage its preliminaries Friday afternoon and its finals Saturday morning.

The records most likely to be broken are in the pole vault and the three weight events. It will take some unusually good running to change any of the track marks.

The pole vault record, 12 feet, 7 1/4 inches set by Skelly of Oak Park in 1930, is expected to go into the discard when Don Merwin of Woodstock wars to his.

Bill Faymonville of New Trier, (Winnetka) has thrown the shot past the present record of 52 feet 6 1/4 inches held by Jack Preston of Atlanta last year, and he may have to break the record to win. Last week Tony Corso of Hillsboro led all the district trials with a 52-foot toss. Faymonville fell down to 51 feet, 4 1/4 inches.

Holds 139 Ft. Toss.
Faymonville holds the present discus record, 139 feet, 8 inches, and has bettered this in competition, but even so, Faymonville may be forced to bow to Eddie Hahnfeldt, the Palatine boy who flings the platter 145 feet. Art Kovacevich of DeKalb led district qualifiers with a toss of 130.7 feet.

Hahnfeldt is also the main threat to the javelin record. His best effort with the needle, 186 feet, 10 inches, is about a foot beyond the state mark held by Windmill of Pleasant Hill. Hahnfeldt had no trouble winning the Evanston district javelin throw with a 181-foot toss.

Of more than passing interest will be the sprinting duel between Bob Packard of Rockford, defending champion, and his rivals, notably Bill Terwilliger of DeKalb, Bob Ashley of Peoria Central, Jack Emigh of Kankakee, Busch of Manly (Chicago), Hanson of Franklin Grove, and Bob McCarthy of Oak Park.

With favorable weather conditions Packard or one of his rivals might, run the century in :09.7 to equal the present record. This is only an outside possibility, however, since Packard is the only high school sprinter in Illinois who has broken 10 flat this year.

The high school meet will be only a part of the big interscholastic week-end at the state university. A track meet and baseball game against Michigan in the afternoon and the annual interscholastic circus in the evening are also scheduled.

NORTHWESTERN AGAIN CALLED SAFEST ROAD

Awarded Class A Award For Fifth Consecutive Year Monday

America's highest honor for employee safety work on railroads—the National Safety Council's Class A Award, was given to the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Monday night at a banquet in the Pennsylvania Hotel in New York as a reward for the outstanding record of that line during 1934. This marked the fifth successive year that the North Western Line has ranked first in employee safety among Class 1 railroads of the United States.

While not included in the judging of the contest, 1934 was also the sixth successive year that the Chicago & Northwestern Railway has had no passengers killed in a train accident—a period during which 124,823,082 passengers have been carried for a total of 4,105,591,737 passenger miles.

Pushing Crossing Campaign.
George V. Vilas, Vice President and General Manager, under whose guidance the safety program has been carried on during the past five years, received the award from John E. Long, president of the National Safety Council. C. H. Longman, assistant to the Vice President and General Manager, in charge of safety, was also present.

Vilas, in accepting the award, paid glowing tribute to the cooperative efforts of the employees and safety supervisors throughout the North Western territory. He stated that the willing work on the part of the employees in the campaign to cut injuries to a minimum was a constant source of gratification to everyone on the North Western.

Praises Employee Corporation.
The North Western has also made a constant effort, during the last five years, to cut down accidents at grade crossings and to urge children not to play around railroad tracks. These types of accidents are largely out of the control of railroads. However, by talks in schools and general publicity, the latter has been curbed somewhat and through careful whistling, the extension of the whistle cord to the fireman's side of the engine and careful lookout the crossing deaths have been decreased from 76 in 1929 to 48 in 1934 on the North Western—this is in spite of a heavy increase in automobile traffic on highways.

Major Steps in Campaign.
In discussing the safety practices on the North Western, Vilas pointed to some major steps that have contributed to the constant reduction in employee fatalities during the last five years. Among them were:

1. The checking of track with the Sperry Rail Detector Car to eliminate flaws before they develop fully.
2. Installation of gas burners at certain switch points for use during blizzards—this eliminates the hazard of having workmen on tracks in "poor visibility" weather.
3. Use of safety belts on employees working at heights.
4. Use of safety shoes by employees doing heavy work.
5. Holding of short accident prevention meetings once each week.
6. Constant campaign for looking out for people on tracks.

REFUGE of ADAM and EVE

THE island of Ceylon that to the Persians was both a pearl and a tear, as shown by its shape, is the legendary refuge of Adam and Eve after their expulsion from the Garden of Eden. This island beneath the tip of India, therefore, has become the shrine of pilgrims from all over the world.

To its highest mountain, the Peak of Adam, come Christians, Mohammedans, Buddhists, and Hindus, all barefoot, to worship at a rock held sacred because of a peculiar depression that looks like a large footprint. Buddhists attribute it to Buddha, Hindus to Siva, Christians to St. Thomas, apostle of India.

MEN AND BOATS

Benign summer tempers wind and water—then the new season of adventure for boatmen and fishermen, on fresh water or salt—really gets under way. Here in a glittering camera canvas the romance that lures men down to the sea in ships—any kind of ships—has been caught in all its glamour; the thrill of a solid deck under foot, a distant horizon beckoning, the rolling sea setting an irresistible rhythm, with a hot sun rising to new glory, dawning through the clouds in promise of soul-resting moments far from the roar of the cities.

It is said that the art of printing took its origin from some rude impressions taken (for the amusement of children) from letters carved on the bark of a beech tree.

HUDSON SMASHES 36 MORE OFFICIAL RECORDS in one of the most gruelling tests ever given an automobile . . . makes clean sweep up to and beyond 1000 miles

1000-mile record
beats best mark ever set by any closed car

NEWS FLASH—Muroc Lake, Cal., April 13—36 official A.A.A. records broken by a stock Hudson Eight. Top speed—over 93 miles an hour for five miles. Average speed—over 85 miles an hour for 1000 miles and beyond. A clean sweep of every record in its class up to and including 1000 miles and 3000 kilometers, and four unlimited class closed car records. Electrical timing correct to a millionth part of a second and every record certified by American Automobile Association.

Here's what it means to you. Probably you'll never care to drive a car five miles at 93 miles an hour. Yet, it means a lot to you to have a car that can go that fast—to shoot out of traffic tangles or flash you out ahead on the highway.

It isn't likely you'll want to drive a thousand-mile stretch at 85 miles an hour, but you do want a car with the fine engineering, power and ruggedness it takes to do this. Ordinary driving is no work at all for a car like this.

That's what it means to own a Hudson—smoother miles, more enjoyable miles—plus ruggedness and gasoline economy that make those miles cost less. You can see and drive an exact duplicate of this record-breaking Hudson Eight at any Hudson showroom. You can also see the complete list of these 36 new records, and scores of others held by Hudson-built cars. Take the wheel today and discover what this record-breaking performance means to you.

WHY AMERICA PREFERS BUDWEISER...

Its age-old TASTE is found only in Budweiser

Hundreds of years ago, an ancient monastery in Budweis, Bohemia, brewed a beer of such distinctive and exquisite taste that connoisseurs pronounced it the finest in all the world. Its taste was slightly tart with a delicious, unforgettable tang. Those who drank this beer never tired of it.

Sixty years ago, Anheuser-Busch got from the Bohemian monks their age-old formula. And so BUDWEISER came to America. Its popularity swept the country and then the entire world. The demand for BUDWEISER built the world's largest brewery.

Refinements of method and facilities, yes—but the ancient formula of BUDWEISER remains unchanged. And so today, as of yesterday, BUDWEISER holds an unmatched record—the big-gest-selling bottled beer in history. Its distinctive, age-old taste makes it so.

FAMOUS BLIND ASTRONOMER OF YERKES IS DEAD

Dr. Edwin Brant Frost
Attained Greatest Fame
After Losing Sight

Chicago, May 15.—(AP)—Death has ended the long scientific career of Dr. Edwin Brant Frost, 68, who reached his greatest eminence as an astronomer after he had lost his eyesight.

Peritonitis was said by physicians to have been the cause of his death, which occurred late yesterday at Billings Memorial hospital, where the famous astronomer underwent an operation Sunday for the removal of gall stones.

Dr. Frost was director emeritus of Yerkes observatory, operated by the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., having been retired as active head July 1, 1932, after holding the post 27 years.

Pupil His Successor.

Dr. Frost, who gained international fame through the development of the stellar spectrograph—photography of star light, with the light broken up into component parts—was succeeded as active head at Yerkes by Dr. Otto Struve, a Russian student, who had worked under his guidance.

As a teacher, astronomer and mathematician, Dr. Frost followed his study of astrophysics from the beginning of his work at Yerkes, aiding in the development of new prisms for use on the 40-inch telescope, one of the largest of its kind in the world. His first notable contribution to science as a result of his research was the publication in 1903 of "The Determination of the Speed in the Line of Sights of Twenty Stars of the Orlo Type."

Funeral services will be held in the University of Chicago chapel tomorrow.

Although his blindness made it impossible for him to do more than supervise astronomical studies at the observatory in his later years, Dr. Frost never tired of evolving theories on astral processes. That there is a definite cosmic scheme was his principal contention.

Purposeful Nature.
"I cannot imagine the planets getting together and deciding under what law they would operate," he was wont to say. "Everything that we learn from observation seems to me to point toward a purposeful operation of nature, and it seems inconsistent with physical science not to believe in a mind behind the universe."

Dr. Frost also believed in the theory that there may be any number of "worlds" comparable to this one. Like many other astronomers and scientists, he saw in the various "axies" the same 92 elements that are found in this earth and man. He maintained, therefore, that it is illogical to assume that this is the only world of its kind in the cosmic system.

Within a stone's throw of Yerkes Observatory was his home on a high bank overlooking Lake Geneva. With his wife and daughter he shared the house with various members of the observatory staff.

Always a lover of nature, Dr. Frost was particularly fond of flowers and birds. With Mrs. Frost he built up a large garden around their home, and one of his habits was to present choice roses to his guests.

Never Complained.
Whether his blindness, caused by the floating off of the retina of one eye and a cataract on the other, was induced by his constant peering through telescopes never was determined. His philosophical acceptance of the affliction, however, won the deepest respect of his associates.

Not only did he never complain of it, but he seemed determined to ignore the handicap, though with no ostentatious display of Spartan forbearance. He simply did not mention the fact.

Upon being introduced to some one, he would say pleasantly and conventionally, "I am glad to see you," with no trace of recognizing the irony that might be implied by his words.

Similarly, he refused to allow his blindness to affect his physical welfare. Although forced to give up golf, he found great enjoyment in swimming and skating despite a physique that never was rugged.

Thursday is Safety Education Day Here

Commissioner Cal G. Tyler of the department of public health and safety has set aside Thursday as Safety Day in Dixon when a special campaign will be put on to make drivers and pedestrians conscious of proper driving and walking.

"There are too many accidents lately," said Commissioner Tyler, "that are caused entirely by carelessness either on the part of the driver of the pedestrian. We intend to correct traffic mistakes and caution jay-walkers, hoping to lessen all chances for accidents."

"The first plan we intend to put into operation," continued Commissioner Tyler, "is a free brake test. It has been proved that three out of every four cars give faulty brakes, and we intend to correct that condition."

Summer Sweethearts

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, is discontented with the useless round of social activities that make up her life. Her father and aristocratic stepmother, BERTINE, refuse to let Katharine undertake any sort of work. Katharine rides daily with MICHAEL HEATHERS, young westerner who runs a riding club. SALLY MOON, local coquette, also enrolls at the club for riding lessons.

ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, returns from Europe where she was sent to forget a love affair with GIBBS LARKIN, of whom her parents disapprove. Zoe is still in love with Gibbs.

DR. JOHN KAYE, a relative of Bertine's, pays the Strykhursts a visit.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

ZOE, after all, was not angry. Katharine's heart softened when she saw her at the Country Club dance—small and round and wistful in her floating printed silk, which was the prize of the frocks she had brought back from Paris.

It was a gala night at the club. Ribbons of colored paper flew back and forth, and balloons were set free, only to be punctured by the cigar of some roisterer. Katharine danced with Dr. Kaye to be cut in upon again and again. She looked lovely tonight in clear ivory silk, the gown molded to the lines of her exquisite young figure. Bertine Strykhurst, glancing at Katharine's animated face, as she laughed and talked with John Kaye, observed to her husband with satisfaction that Katharine had evidently forgotten all about that career nonsense.

Frank Corliss, the typical sophomore, in elegant English dinner clothes, with real pearls for studs, made a foil for Zoe Parker. Lisa Parker and Bertine both agreed that they were a charming pair.

"He seems quite mad about her," Lisa sighed. "I wouldn't mind seeing her settle down—after this last year."

"You've had a worrying time of it," agreed Bertine, who knew all about Gibbs and who, although not a mother herself, would tell anyone who cared to listen that the girl of today was certainly a problem.

"The only thing Katharine really seems to care about," Bertine said brightly, "is riding. Really, I wish sometimes that Victor had let her have a horse of her own. I am not quite sure I like the idea of exposing her to the charms of that young westerner over at Shady Ridge. Much too good-looking, in a certain crude way."

"Oh, Katharine's all right," Lisa Parker said comfortably, watching Zoe's brown curls bob against young Corliss' black-coated shoulder. "She is so serene. Nothing ever seems to trouble her."

Bertine started to reply, but thought better of it. People mis understood so, if she said a single word about Katharine! That was what it was to be a stepmother. Nobody gave you the least bit of credit.

Katharine steered John out on the terrace. "Noisy!" she observed, drooping against a pillar.

"And hot!" "John, you see what I mean about father and Bertine? I haven't had a chance to talk to you all day."

He nodded. "I see. They want to keep you wrapped in cotton wool. Your father doesn't know you've grown up."

Her eyes glittered feverishly in the half light.

"How—how can I escape from it?"

HE laughed, and something of the wholesome quality of his own good, gentle personality touched her with a sort of healing boy, and Captain Byrne and his brake testing lane. The pavement has been marked to show the distance a car should stop with good brakes, and officers will be on duty at all times to conduct the tests. I urge every motor car owner to drive in and have his brakes tested absolutely free. Let's make Dixon safe for everyone."

Commissioner Tyler went on to say that Safety Week has the wholehearted approval of all city officials who are determined that accidents must be stopped.

"Miss England" Lost Her Heart Balm Suit

London, May 15.—(AP)—Miss Angela Joyce, the "Miss England of 1930," has lost her breach of promise suit against Lord Revelstoke, wealthy young banker.

A jury in the Old Bailey, which included three women, required only half an hour to reach a verdict for the defendant. Costs of the action were assessed against Miss Joyce.

The beauty contest winner, who changed her name from Ivy Dawkins when the state called to her, testified that Revelstoke, known as Rupert Baring before his father's death, proposed to her several times while he was in school at Cambridge. Once he popped the question in her bedroom, she asserted.

This Revelstoke flatly denied, telling the court the question of marriage only came up between them when Miss Joyce herself raised it. He told her he was not interested, he testified.

FORMULATING THE GOOD.

Almost all people who try to formulate the good find it in one or more of three things: Pleasure, virtue, or self-realization.

Katharine scarcely recognized the white face that stared at her from the mirror.

releasing her from the mutinous tensions which had bound her all day.

"Well, the Victorians used to marry to get out from under parental supervision. But that didn't work so well. Maybe it does nowadays. Women seem to rule the roost."

"Don't be vulgar," But she was laughing, too.

"However," she pursued, with relish. "You don't just marry—like that, I mean. You've got to be—well, at least, think you're in love."

"Plenty of boys have been loping around after you tonight," said Dr. Kaye quietly. In the light from the flare of his match, cupped against the breeze, she could see his lean, almost ascetic face.

Thirty, John was; he was already a fine doctor and a man everyone respected. The woman who married him would be a lucky person.

Katharine thought, innocently.

"Oh, boys!" she rejoined, on a note of contempt.

"Don't like 'em, eh?" "Not—not much!" she confessed. There was a wicker couch here, with deep square cushions. She sank into it and John Kaye sat down beside her.

"There somebody else?" "Not—not really," she sighed. John would be a perfect person to confide in. She needed a confidante; it was hard, always keeping things to yourself. And there was no one she could talk to, really. Bertine didn't understand. . . . oh, she meant to, but she never really heard what you said; or if she did you were certain she would use it as a lunch table topic next day.

No, she wouldn't confide in Bertine.

Besides, there was really nothing to tell about Michael Heather. Katharine had had, on arriving at the club tonight, the strangest feeling that she might see him among the guests. Obviously that was absurd.

"Nobody else," she said, quite firmly.

Zoe came out with her Princeton boy, and Captain Byrne and his handsome blond fiancée joined them for a cigarette. Captain Altheus Byrne was an army man, home from Fort Sill on vacation. He and the plump, graceful widow from Lincoln Hills were to be married the following spring. Gracia McIlvaine was 35, just four years younger than the erect bronzed soldier who was to be her third husband. Gracia had been twice "lawfully widowed." Zoe said gleefully. She did not like Gracia, who insisted on being the center of every group she joined. Gracia had a penetrating voice; she told endless stories of dramatic incidents of which she was the center. There was always an amused male or two to listen. She held them by sheer force of personality.

It was arranged that she was to meet him at the Ritz at 1. Later they would go over to the building on the East River where Dr. Kaye was to live, in two rooms high above the turgid stream with its tugs and doughty steamers flying their way to New England. After John had left Katharine called the number of the riding club.

"That you, Tips? It's Miss Strykhurst. Tell Michael I won't be riding today. I didn't want him to keep Fury for me. . . ."

"That's all right, Miss Strykhurst. Miss' Michael, he went off with Miss Moon on Fury 10-15 minutes ago."

Katharine put the telephone in its cradle with hands that shook a little. She scarcely recognized the white face that stared back at her from the mirror. Sally Moon—on her own little horse. Sally there at her hour!

Ellen went by, with a drift of dresses over her arm. "I pressed your pink shantung, Miss Katharine."

"Thanks." But she didn't really hear it. She wasn't thinking of the frock she would wear to town to lunch with John Kaye. Her mind burned with the vision of two riders drifting along the green lanes together.

Was this jealousy? Was she really in love with Michael Heather?

Critics of AAA Liars Says President in Talk to Capital-Inspired Pilgrimage

While Sec. Wallace Works in Opposite Ways in Iowa

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—After shouting their approval of a speech in which President Roosevelt said "high and mighty" critics of the New Deal farm program are "lying," farmer supporters of the AAA gathered again today to plan a new, national agrarian organization.

Leaders in the move said they envisioned it as a unifying force to wipe out sectional lines. They said "we have several national farm organizations but they are not in accord."

There were grins of satisfaction and much back-slapping among the farm "marchers" as they reviewed yesterday's program. They said their demonstration in favor of the agricultural program—and against the critics who are seeking to alter it—was a success.

The program drove to a climax in the later afternoon when the 4,000 men stood before the south portico of the White House, looked up at the president and whooped their enthusiasm as he told them the farm policies would continue.

Study in Contrasts
The attitude of the crowd below him was a study in contrasts. Some bronzed, lean men hitched the suspenders of their overalls and chewed tobacco; some wore their Sunday best, looking as if it just came out of the mail order bundle; others wore well-cut business suits. The applause ranged from handclaps to sounds reminiscent of howling.

Introduced by Secretary Wallace as the "Heart of America," the president lost no time in lashing at critics.

"The crocodile tears shed by the professional mourners of an old and obsolete order over the slaughter of little pigs and other measures to reduce surplus agricultural inventories deceive very few thinking people and least of all the farmers themselves," he said.

Denies Waste of Food
"It is high time for us to repeat on every occasion," he said, "that we have not wastefully destroyed food in any form."

While the farmers declared their "March on Washington," was spontaneous and AAA officials asserted they had nothing to do with the movement, Senator Dickinson (R, Ia.) said it was "inspired" from the capital.

"In my judgment," he said, "the march on the Capital was inspired from Washington. They are trying to create the impression that the administration farm program is popular, when every iota of evidence I have is to the contrary."

The men here from Iowa, he said, were mostly holders of corn-hog contracts. He declared he had been informed that some of the middle-westerners had been solicited by county agricultural agents working for the government.

Roosevelt in his speech yesterday said that "I think that you and I are agreed in seeking a continuance of a national policy which on the whole is proving successful."

"Spacious Lies"
"The memory of old conditions," he said, "under which the product of a whole year's work often would not bring you the cost of transporting it to market is too fresh in your minds to let you be led astray by the solemn admonitions and specious lies of those who in the past profited most when your distress was greatest."

"You remember and I remember that not so long ago the poor had less food to eat and less clothes to wear and that was at a time when you had to practically give away your products. Then the surpluses were greater and yet the poor were poorer than they are today when you farmers are getting a reasonable although still insufficient price."

The men meeting today to discuss the new organization were only part of the farm gathering. They were chosen from among the 4,000 to map a course of action.

The others were drifting out of the city in small groups.

WALLACE FIRM GROWS.
Meanwhile a special dispatch to the Chicago Tribune from Des Moines, said:

"Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace has had his hands figuratively busy in Iowa lately on two opposing corn projects. As a cabinet member he is working vigorously to reduce corn acreage on the one hand, while on the other the acreage is being expanded in the production of seed corn by the Hi-Bred Seed company of Grimes, Ia., in which Mr. Wallace is personally interested and his wife is principal stockholder."

"It was revealed here today that about three months ago the Hi-Bred Seed company contracted to buy a half section of land at Johnston, Ia., about eight miles from here. The agreement is subject to court confirmation and the clearing of the title.

offered at auction under the court's direction a few years ago. The high bid was $41 an acre, but the court disapproved the sale. The price paid by the Wallace seed corn concern is said to be not much higher than the auction price of $41 an acre.

"Under the acreage reduction program the seed corn business in this state has developed to the point that the Hi-Bred company has raised its prices about $3 a bushel above last season's price. During the present seed corn buying season the company has asked $10 a bushel for its corn."

"Leo W. Williams of the Wallace Seed Corn company says that in comparative yield tests on 1,200 farms the average increase from the use of Hi-Bred seed was 12 bushels to the acre."

For Better Acreage Yield.
"With better seed corn and a favorable season the 152,000 Iowa farmers of the 1935 corn-hog contract under Secretary Wallace's Agricultural Adjustment Administration plan expect to produce about as much corn this season as did the 176,000 farmers who signed the contract last year. Approximately 24,000 fewer individual farmers signed the corn-hog contract in Iowa this year, but reduction program officials expect the total acreage to be almost as much as last year, because there is a greater number of acres under the control of the individual signers."

"Last June it became known that the Hi-Bred Seed company was planning to extend its activities. The company signed the corn-hog contract, but leased more land and equipped a large corn dryer at Durant, Ia. This apparently was done in anticipation of big business this spring. All the Hi-Bred seed corn held by the company was disposed of early in the season last year. While company officials refused to divulge the number of bushels sold for planting in 1934, it was learned from other quarters that the figure reached about 25,000 bushels."

It became known last June that in the Hi-Bred Seed company's expansion program 700 acres of land had been leased in the vicinity of Durant, Ia. The drying and treating plant there is equipped to handle 100 bushels an hour.

Wins Favor in Iowa.
"In a Washington interview last summer Secretary Wallace said that the seed corn sold by his company would plant from 1 to 1 1/2 per cent of the total 1934 Iowa crop. He also said: 'There could be no appreciable economic effect for years to come by planting all the available Hi-Bred seed corn, for the reason that the supply is limited.'"

Danville Workman Was Trapped in Live Steam

Danville, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—Trapped in a cloud of steam, Robert Thomas, an employee of the Illinois Power & Light Corporation's power plant here, was severely scalded Tuesday after broken valve released all the plant boilers.

The steam escaped with a roar heard for blocks. Although great jets of steam poured from the building, a fellow employee shouted directions to Thomas, who crawled through the blinding steam to the door. His condition was serious.

The valve which blew out was in a crosspipe between a boiler and the plant's header main. Local power was cut off, but by cutting in current from a highline, the utility officials continued service.

CONVENTION OF LEGION HERE IN JUNE BIG EVENT

Will Be Greatest Gathering of Veterans Since Days of Great War

Citizens of Dixon and surrounding territory will have an opportunity of seeing the American Legion organization of the Thirteenth District at its best and in the largest numbers assembled in one group since the World War, when the district convention assemblies in Dixon next month, Commander Walter Smith stated today that practically all of the finances necessary are now assured and that interest now centers on arrangements which will go to make the convention a success.

Present indications point to the presence in Dixon at that occasion of 25 large bugle and drum corps accompanying the various post delegations, as well as bands and drill team organizations.

"It becomes very necessary for all committees to start action immediately as there are only three post meetings before the convention opens on June 28 and continuing through June 29," Commander Walter Smith stated today.

"The success or failure of an affair of this type is entirely within the control of the members of the post," and with this statement, he urged a full attendance at the post meeting called for this evening.
